The Daisy Phay-NYP Foundation Grant

The Daisy Phay-NYP Foundation was started from the estate of the late Dr Phay Seng Whatt in memory of his wife, Daisy. The Foundation served to provide for the needy and less privileged in life, particularly in education.

Koh Beng Swee Bursary

Koh Beng Swee

Japanese warplanes were bombing the area around his house in Dublin Road in late 1941 when then 17-year-old Koh Beng Swee was studying at home for his School Certificate (O-Level equivalent) exams.

That terrifying experience made him all the more determined to pass his exams and go on to fulfil his dream of becoming an engineer. He did it, after the war! He cycled to night school, took on a draughtsman's job at the Public Works Department (PWD) and excelled in the Member of the Institute of Structural Engineers (M.I.Struct.E) exams. Later, he was in the design team tasked to build the iconic former National Library at Stamford Road.

Mr Koh died in June 2019. He always had a heart for those in need, and the Koh Beng Swee Bursaries are part of his legacy.

Mustard Seed Foundation

The Mustard Seed Foundation Bursary was established by Ms Lynn Hermijanto in loving memory of her late father, Mr Toto Hermijanto. The goal is for the advancement of women in society.

Applicants must be female Business Management students who demonstrate a need for financial assistance and a want for personal growth.
